Background & Personal Details

"I think I can prove that the Johnson is telling the truth about the target."

Everyone looked up as Kerso blurted out his news, but it was Marshall who spoke.

"Oh? And how are you going to do that?"

"Roswell." The slim technomancer smiled triumphantly. Hawke scratched her head.

"I...uh, I don't get it."

Kerso flung a series of images to the team's AR. "Sorry, a bit ahead of myself. So every year the Fortean Icon Organization holds a seminar around July 12th, the anniversary of the crash at Roswell, New Mexico. And they always hold it at the Sheraton Hotel. Except four years ago they had to hold it at the Gates Millenium instead."

Kasha, Marshall, and Hawke stared at him.

"What? I just got curious as to why."

"Still don't see how this relates to our target," muttered Hawke.

"Well the reason they had to move locations was that Ren Raku had swooped in and reserved the entire hotel for the same weekend in order to hold a nanotechnology convention. One of the keynote speakers was a Doctor Owen Wallerston." Kerso smiled triumphantly. Kasha, Marshall, and Hawke stared back at him. After a few seconds his smile faltered.

"Uh, you guys don't remember?" Kerso rifled through his files before pulling up another AR window on the team's interface. "Part of the Johnson's info on our target was his post-grad thesis work, which he conducted under a Doctor Owen Wallerston."

"Let me get this straight. You think that our target used his post-grad's advisor's name as an alias to give a ground-breaking talk on nanotechnology?"

Kerso smiled and dropped his trump card, the vid still from a new soundbite published by INN which showed their target, aka Owen Wallerston, speaking on stage. Hawke shook her head.

"I don't believe it."

"Believe it," said Marshall, grabbing his Alpha. "Let's roll."
